

WOUND HIM IN THE HEART

3-18-14
(#15)

#1 HIT SONG

- 1. He'd outlast her, thinking he was smarter
but, she'd go faster, playing so much harder;
and he hadn't factored in his work of art
the part, that she could wound him in the heart.
- 2. Pennies on the table, marbles in the snow
Always walked away from the cards with more to show.
But, he didn't know she had him beaten from the start,
that before he could go, she would wound him in the heart.
- 3. Spin the arrow, toss the coin, and pick-up sticks shuffle the cards and deal out your dazzling tricks.
But he didn't realize she was more than worldly-wise,
— a woman's hidden dart could wound him in the heart.

BRIDGE: Hey, hey scarecrow ! Is that all you've got to sow ?
Better have more to hope to beat her,
two in a row.
You'll never know the first, her worst,
would pull you in her snare
as she'd win the purse, with you, dumbfounded, standing there —
jaw dropped, pockets empty, beat you fair & square !

- 4. Tossing dice, moving pieces on the game board
Winnings nice, name your price, snag & bag the reward;
Pile up a hoard that will never fall apart
— until you're marooned, from her wound, right through the heart.

[INSTRUMENTAL]

- 5. Ah, but isn't it good, once you fully understood it was meant to be this way —
for her to have that special card to play.
That once you were had, you actually felt glad because she's worth more than all the rest,
you ended up with all the best.

[END]

Written: March 17-18, 2014